FATE OF CHARLTON RESTING IN HANDS OF FOUR ALIENISTS

If Sane, Father Will Not Object to His Extradition to Italy.

PRISONER CALMLY READING NOVELS

Should He Be Insane Incarceration in American Asylum Will Be Asked.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., June 25.—Just what means shall be employed to prevent Porter Charlton being extradited to Italy to stand trial for the murder of his wife, Mrs. Mary Scott Charlton, will be determined within the next few days.

Everything hinges on the report to Lawyer William D. Edwards, who has commissioned four alienists, Dr. A. M.
Hamilton, Dr. Charles A. Dana, Dr.
Arlitz, and Dr. Fisher to make a thorough examination of Charlton.

If Sane Must Stand Trial.

If they unite in declaring that he is insane then every effort will be made to have him sent to an asylum in New Jersey for treatment.

If, on the other hand, they decide that he is not insane, but that he understands what he is doing there will be no opposition to his being taken back to Italy.

"These physicians have been instructed to tell us the exact truth," declared Attorney Edwards today.

Fair Play All That Is Asked.

"They have had it made plain to them by Judge Charlton and myself that if the boy is sane within the limitations of the law we must know it and we will not fight to keep him from being tried for his crime. All Judge Charlton asks is fair play.

"He has been told by doctors that Porter is insane and he has accepted their statement. Now, we have secured four of the most eminent alienists in the country to say just what his mental condition is."

Will Ask Habeas Corpus.

So soon as the report of the alienists is made, should they agree that Charlton is not of sound mind, application will be made for a writ of habeas corpus to get him out of the jail here.
In this way, it is expected, he can be committed to an asylum where he can be properly cared for.

This will precipitate a lively fight.
Attorney Emil Fuchs, representing Captain Scott, brother of the murdered woman, is hard at work compiling data to show that Charlton is sane. This consists of statements from former friends of the young bank clerk and letters that he sent to this country from Italy, which are perfectly coherent and apparently the work of a normal person.

Spends Quiet Night.

Young Charlton spent a quiet night in his cell in the jail here. He read "The Last Days of Pompeii" until the lights were turned out. According to the watchman Charlton slept well throughout the night, and ate breakfast today as if he were hungry. He then spent a couple of hours exercising in the corridor. Charlton held himself aloof from the others, but seemed cheerful and content.

From the barred window of his cell Charlton can look directly into the offices of the Public Prosecutor, Pierre Garven, who will represent the State in all proceedings against him.

Today the FBI physician, Dr. Converse, examined Charlton.

Italy Will Try Charlton.

Charlton's case will be tried in Italy, even if not extradited. Consul General Di Rosa said today:

"Even though Charlton is not surrendered to the Italian government, trial will take place in Italy, and if he is convicted he will be looked upon as an escaped convict. After that, if

WEATHER REPORT.

High barometric pressure over the Northern States has resulted in a moderation of the warm wave in the New England and Middle Atlantic States, the Ohio valley, and the Lake region.

The indications are that the weather will be generally fair without material change in temperature tonight and Sunday in the New England and Middle Atlantic States, the Lake region, and the Ohio valley.

FORECAST FOR THE DISTRICT.

Fair tonight and Sunday; not much change in temperature; light, variable winds, mostly easterly.

RECORDS ECLIPSED BY THIS CONGRESS IN EXPENDITURES

Appropriations and Authori-zations Exceed Last Ses-sion's by $10,000,000.

TALK OF ECONOMY SOON FORGOTTEN

Statements Will Show That $1,054,- 086,941 Has Been Spent
This Session.

At 2:35 the House and Senate adopted a concurrent resolution to adjourn tonight at 11 o'clock. A recess will be taken late this afternoon until 10:55.

It has been a billion dollar session of Congress and then some.
Senator Hale as chairman of the Appropriations Committee will issue a statement of expenditures next Tuesday.
On the House side Representative Tawney will issue a similar statement.
It will be shown that the session of Congress just closing has broken all records in the history of the Republic in the amount of money appropriated and authorized to be expended.

The total amount of the appropriations and authorizations as calculated unofficially this afternoon approximated $1,054,086,941.

This exceeds by about $10,000,000 the total of the appropriations and authori-zations made at the last regular session of Congress. The amount of the appropriations in the last regular session was in round numbers $1,044,000,000.
When the session opened there was much talk of economy. Gradually this talk died out. The disposition in the closing week of the session has been to make more and more liberal. A river and harbor bill was put through carrying upward of $50,000,000 and a public building bill carrying $25,000,000. In addition to these a $20,000,000 bond issue for the purpose of completing reclamation projects was authorized.

BUSY PASSING BILLS, MEMBERS AWAITING ADJOURNMENT TIME

Both houses experienced a great excitement at the close of the first session of the Sixty-first Congress today.
Word went around early in the morning that all business would be out of the way before 6 o'clock in the afternoon. The House met at 11 o'clock, and the Senate at 10, and from that time on members occupied themselves in reading reports, watching the clock, and gazing alternately at railroad time-tables.

Equine thoroughbreds never paced more impatiently at the starting post than did these staid legislators while they waited for adjournment.
A great volume of business, however, was transacted and disposed of amid extraordinarily good humor, especially in the lower house. In the Senate were the final demands for unanimous consent for "leave to print." It was the last call for those who have opposition back home to get in a sledgehammer blow, telling the dear people why they should be returned to the halls of Congress.

Anxious to Get Home.

It was noticed that those who have most formidable opposition were the most persistent gazers upon the railroad time tables. The red, blue, or yellow books stuck out of almost every pocket, and every now and then a member might be seen to scribble on a sheet of paper, doubtless arranging his stump speaking itinerary.

In the Senate, of course, more or less dignity ought to be preserved, but even that personification of Senatorial dignity, Mr. Aldrich, gazed frequently at the clock.

In the midst of these get-away hurries Mr. Simmons of North Carolina susci-cated upon making a farewell speech on the cost of living. The Senate has heard a great deal about the high cost of living this season, and Mr. Simmons' last outburst on the subject might have come at some more appropriate time. If the dignity of the Senators who listened to him, and those who hustled out into the cloak rooms, may be taken as an indication.

Forest Reserves Forgotten.

Nevertheless Senator Simmons had something to say and intended to say it, and there was no heading him off.
The Appalachian forest reserve bill, which has been talked to death in the Senate for the past two days, will not now come up for consideration until February 15, next, the Senate voting to postpone action, and thus preventing the outlet of more pent-up oratory.

On the whole it is a great finish, and members of the House and Senate showed how busy men can be at the close of a seven months' session with the heat of adjournment set. There will be a mighty exodus from Washington tonight.

REPUBLICANS FLEE
AS SIMMONS TALKS

Senator Simmons chose the closing hours of the present Congress today to reply to the Republican members of the Cost of Living Committee, who had insisted that the tariff had nothing to do with the increase in prices.
For the first time during this session a Democratic campaigner attacked in an emptying the Republican side of the Senate chamber. During most of his speech not a Republican Senator occupied a seat.

Senator Simmons hooted at the idea that the tariff had nothing to do with the cost of living and produced figures to show that duty-paid goods were much higher in this country in cost than were similar goods marketed in free-trade countries. Then, too, the North Carolina Senator, scoffed at the argument that the increased produc-

PINCHOT COMMENTS INSURGENTS' WORK

Leaving Oyster Bay, Declares Ballinger Plans Blocked in Bill.

NEW YORK, June 25.—Clifford Pin-chot, deposed forester, who has been visiting Col. Theodore Roosevelt at Oyster Bay, in company with James R. Garfield, talked politics today in New York, praising insurgency, and by innuendo, "roasting" Secretary Ballinger and Attorney General Wickersham.
That there is any connection between the visit to Oyster Bay and the political talk today, Pinchot strenuously denied. He said that the political talk of today was the first Pin-chot has had since his return from Europe.
"I am very much delighted to announce that Colonel Roosevelt has accepted an invitation to address the Colorado Live Stock Association in Denver, on September 1," he said.

Roosevelt's Plans.

"The association is to meet in Delta, Col., but Colonel Roosevelt could not go that far. I have wired the association that he will come to Denver and feel sure the meeting will be there. I am glad Colonel Roosevelt will thus show his appreciation of the men who have been doing his conservation program and the Roosevelt policy. Colonel Roosevelt also agreed to address the National Conservation Congress in St. Paul, on September 6, thus showing his interest in the movement.

"I will not discuss my trip to Oyster Bay, or the things we talked about there, but you may say that I personally am greatly pleased with the conservational work done in Congress at this session. Take the withdrawal bill.
It was one of the original nine Ballinger conservation bills, and as introduced was thoroughly unfortunate. The National Conservation Association, through Mr. Garfield, opposed it and the bill, as amended and passed is a good bill, and a great victory for conservation, except for the water-power site joker, which the insurgents were unable to kill, although public attention was called to it.

Comments Insurgents.

"The National Conservation Association was in close co-operation with the insurgents in Congress, and we feel extremely cheerful over the ability of the insurgents to make good bills out of bad bills. For instance, take the railroad bill. As prepared by Attorney General Wickersham it was a bad bill.
"The insurgents practically re-wrote it and with the aid of the men who sympathized with them gave us a valuable bill. Such men as Cummings, Clapp, Dooliver, La Follette, and Beveridge have done superbly and they had real support from the sympathizers of the insurgents. The service of the insurgents to the nation has been very remarkable, and I believe the nation appreciates it.

"There is one thing I want to say in conclusion: Conservation will be maintained. Let me say that we do not oppose development on the other hand we favor it, but we want development for the general interests and not development for the special interests."

BATTLE WITH BANDITS FOLLOWS BOLD HOLD-UP; FOUR MEN ARE KILLED

New England Manufacturer and Police Guard Carrying Weekly Payroll Shot Down in Lynn and Money Carried Away.

PURSING POSSES KILL TWO ROBBERS

Citizens Join Police in Hunt for Highwaymen and Running Fight Ends in Capture of All of Them Dead or Alive.

LYNN, Mass., June 25.—Four men were killed and one wounded here today as the result of the most daring hold-up ever committed in New England.

Three bandits killed two victims in the heart of the city and fled with a valise containing between $4,000 and $5,000. Two of the fugitives were shot to death in a bloody trail through the streets. The third was wounded and captured.

All the money was recovered.

STREET BATTLE OUTRIVALS FAR WEST.

After a dash through the crowded city with a dozen or more revolvers crashing in a running battle that outrivaled the wildest days of the Far West, one of the fleeing men was seen to falter and then drop to the ground, while a second later another of his companions dropped.
Both were fatally shot and lived but a short time.

POLICE SAVE MAN FROM ANGRY MOB.

When the third man was wounded he surrendered, a cordon of police was immediately formed about him to protect him from the mob of angry citizens almost every one of whom clamored for his life, and he was whirled from the scene in an automobile, one of those which had been used by per-suing parties in the man hunt.

The dead are:

THOMAS LANDREGAN, shoe manufacturer, who carried the satchel containing the money; shot by highway-men, and died almost instantly.

POLICEMAN THOMAS CARROLL, who accompanied Landregan; shot by highwayman, died in hospital.

ABE ABESON, of New York, bandit; shot and killed by policemen who pursued him.

Unidentified bandit, who either committed suicide or was shot by per-suing policemen. Has several bullet wounds in body.

The third bandit, Bill Kavanaski, of Boston, is under arrest, shot through the hand.

Mr. Landregan and Policeman Carroll were on their way from the Lynn National Bank to the shoe factory of Walsh & Landregan with the money for the weekly payroll. They had obtained the money from Cashier George E. Pillsbury, of the bank, and it is believed that the men saw them get it and dogged their steps.

Attack Made Near Factory.

The two men carrying the money had proceeded as far as the corner of Oxford and Willow streets, having covered about an eighth of a mile, when the attack came. They were just across the street from the factory, not more than forty feet from the front door.

Suddenly there appeared in the street in front of them a man with a revolver, which he began firing at once. He was accompanied by two others, but it was said that one man did all the shooting.

The robber fired directly at the heads of Landregan and Carroll, and was apparently intent upon shooting them dead.

Both men fell to the street. The men grabbed the satchel containing the money and fled. The fugitives ran up Oxford street, shooting right and left.
The commotion made by the shooting caused a great crowd to collect. Many of them took up the chase after the fleeing robbers.

Fugitives Separate.

The fugitives ran after a time in different directions. That divided the chase.

The police were soon on the scene and attention was given to the victims of the attack.

Landregan died almost immediately.
He was forty-six years old, married, junior partner of his firm, and one of the best known men in Lynn.

It was found that Carroll was still alive. He was hurried to the hospital.
The doctors found that he had been very badly shot and that he would probably die.

Carroll was once a captain of the force. He is a past exalted ruler of the Lynn Lodge of Elks. At one time he was a member of the board of police.

From time to time the fugitives halted in their flight toward Essex and fired at the pursuers. A return volley met each shot.

Silver Is Left Behind.

As the crowd followed the bandits toward Essex, they turned in the direction of Salem. The pursuers were in automobiles, wagons, on bicycles, and on foot. The men with the money were seen to take the bills from the bag and drop the satchel with the silver in it.

The bandits were members of the gang
